

Intellectual Capital Development for Technology Companies, Cost Effective Adjunct to IP

03.26.14

The term Intellectual Capital means different things to different people even in the technology space. For business planning purposes, intellectual capital should be recognized as more than patents, copyrights, and other forms of intellectual property, extending broadly to employee skills, knowledge, and problem solving abilities. This is sometimes referred to as a company's or its... Continue Reading