

Accelerated Patent Examination

05.12.14

According to the United States Patent Office's annual report, the average total patent pendency in 2012 for patent applications was 32.4 months. For many patent applicants, this delay is unexpected and may significantly impact future business plans. However, there are special avenues for accelerating examination. A petition requesting prioritized examination (or petition to make special)... Continue Reading