

An Estate Had No Breach of Contract Claim Against A Bank Arising From A Joint Account Where The Estate Was Not Damaged

10.30.15

In Bank of America, N.A. v. Eisenhauer, a husband and wife set up a certificate of deposit account with a bank where the account was a survivorship account and also had payable on death beneficiaries. No 14-0486-CV, 2015 Tex. LEXIS 1005 (Tex. October 30, 2015). So, after one spouse died, all of the funds would... Continue Reading
