

QUICK HITS: Protecting Confidential Information in a Collaborative Setting

09.29.17

A few years ago, our firm defended a client against a claim of patent infringement. As it turned out, our client had disclosed its confidential information to a potential business partner during a pre-collaboration exploratory meeting, which the potential business partner then used to obtain the patent they were asserting. Luckily, our client had insisted on putting a non-disclosure agreement (NDA) in... Continue Reading