

Federal Court Evaluates When Cryptocurrency May Constitute a Security in a Criminal Case

11.08.18

The regulatory framework for virtual currencies is evolving, as federal and state regulators and courts wrestle with the circumstances in which cryptocurrencies are securities. For instance, the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") has observed that tokens, which start as securities, can become something other than a security over time as a token's...